

DRIVE THE FUTURE WITH CLOUD-POWERED VEHICLES

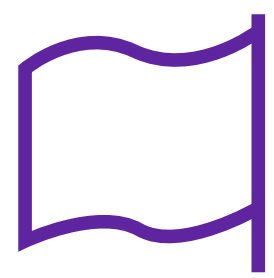

A leading multinational automotive parts manufacturer is revolutionizing how cars receive updates and new features. Working with DXC Technology, they've created a cloud platform that lets drivers download new car features as easily as smartphone apps.

Our customer partnered with DXC and Luxoft to develop a groundbreaking cloud framework for vehicles. The platform lets drivers download new features without visiting a garage, while giving manufacturers a secure way to deploy software updates.

The solution transforms traditional vehicles into secure, upgradeable platforms that stay current with the latest technology, keeping drivers supported.

THE CHALLENGE

Cars are becoming more like computers on wheels. Drivers expect their vehicles to have the latest features and updates—just like their phones. Our customer needed a way to make this happen safely and efficiently, without requiring service visits for every upgrade.

WHAT WE DID

They chose DXC and AWS to create a revolutionary platform that makes vehicles as dynamic and upgradeable as other devices.

Through this platform, vehicles get over-the-air updates and new features instantly, while sophisticated sensor analysis makes sure everything runs smoothly.

Our engineering team leads the development and integration of this secure framework, creating direct connections between cars and manufacturers at every turn.

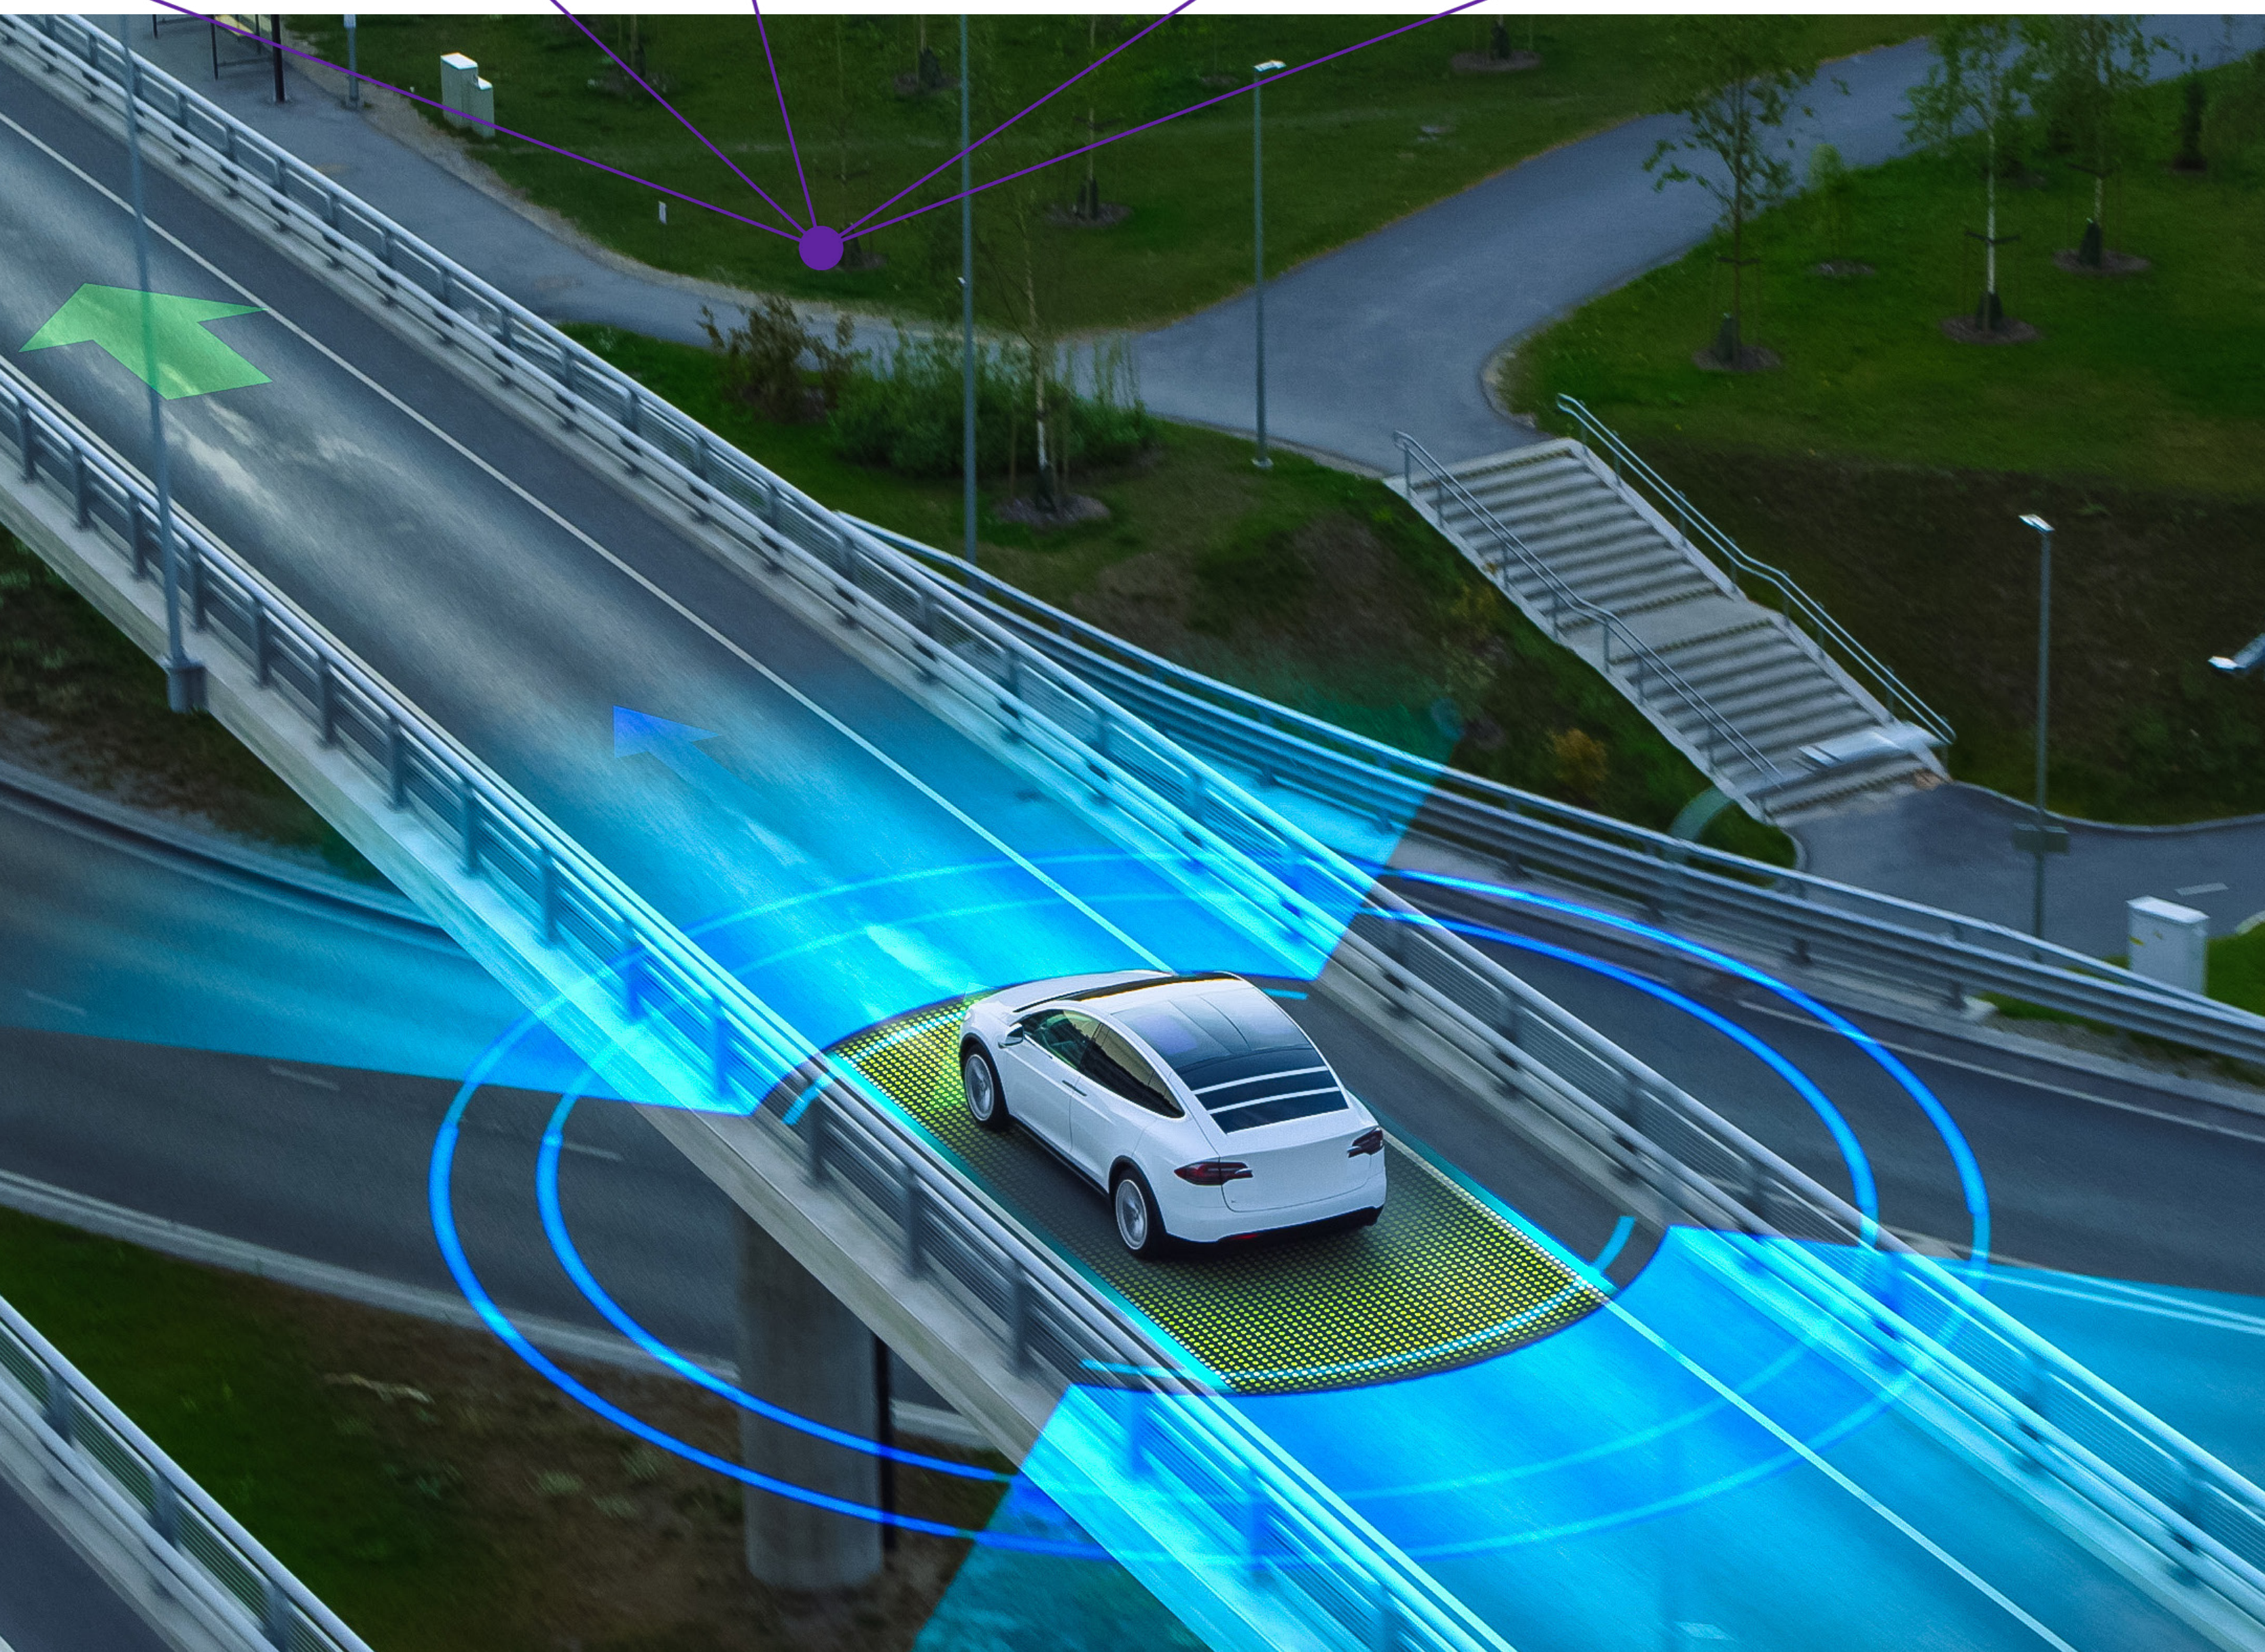

HOW IT'S BETTER

The platform transforms how car features are delivered and updated. Drivers now have the power to add new features through simple downloads, while manufacturers can deploy updates quickly and securely.

The platform has streamlined testing and development cycles, ensuring vehicles stay current with the latest technology advances. Vehicle software works better with DXC, and customer satisfaction follows.

“DXC and Luxoft are our trusted partners. They proved their ability to provide highly skilled experts and solutions for the broad range of challenges on time. Their flexibility, combined with a supportive and positive attitude, is highly appreciated within our program.”

INTERESTED IN WHAT WE DO?

At DXC, we partner with some of the world's largest and most recognized companies leveraging our industry experience. Our difference is in the doing with consultants, engineers and implementers who can solve the challenges, build the solutions and move companies forward like no one else can.
